Swedish teen climate activist arrives in New York by boat for UN summit

Greta Thunberg, 16, sailed from U.K. on a zero-emissions yacht.

Teenage climate activist Greta Thunberg sailed into New York Harbor on Wednesday in a zero-carbon emissions vessel, completing her nearly 14-day journey from England to take part in a United Nations climate summit.

The 16-year-old Swedish schoolgirl, who set sail from Plymouth, England, on Aug. 14, was greeted by cheers, chants and singing as her silver sailboat, the Malizia II, cruised past the Statue of Liberty through choppy waves and rain to drop anchor in Manhattan's yacht harbor.

"All of this is very overwhelming and the ground is still shaking for me," a seemingly bashful Thunberg, clad in a dark blue jumpsuit, told a gathering of reporters and activists who greeted her and the crew of the Malizia II on land.

"It's insane that a 16-year-old had to cross the Atlantic Ocean to make a stand on the climate crisis. This of course is not something I want everyone to do," she said.

Thunberg made her trans-Atlantic journey carbon emission-free by traveling on 60-foot yacht, which is equipped with solar panels and underwater turbines that produce electricity onboard, along with a large black sail carrying the message: "Unite behind the science."

The boat has no shower or toilets, and those aboard including Thunberg's father and crew members ate cold canned food throughout the trip.

Thunberg, who first drew international attention last year when she started missing school on Fridays to protest against political inaction on climate change, said she planned to take part in a demonstration outside the United Nations in New York on Friday.

But first, she said, she planned to: "Eat fresh food, not freeze-dried, not be wet and to clean myself."

Peppered with questions from reporters about her message for U.S. President Donald Trump, a climate change skeptic, Thunberg suggested she was not interested in butting heads with the Republican.

"My message for him is just listen to the science, but he obviously doesn't do that. No one has been able to convince him of climate change, the urgency, why should I be able to do that?" she said. "So I'm just going to focus on spreading awareness."

In addition to the U.N. Climate Action Summit in New York, Thunberg intends to attend the COP 25 climate change conference in Santiago, Chile, in December, planning to make her way there without using air travel. REUTERS

NY Sen. Gillibrand drops out of 2020 presidential race

2 U.S. Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand, who ran a presidential campaign centered on advocacy for women, ended her bid for the 2020 Democratic nomination on Wednesday after failing to gain traction in opinion polls or qualify for next month's debate. The move did not come as a surprise. Gillibrand, 52, languished below 1 percent in polls and struggled to raise money in a packed field. "After more than eight months, and with clarity that she will not have access to the September debate stage, Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand is suspending her campaign for president today," her campaign manager, Jess Fassler, wrote in a memo Wednesday. Gillibrand, a New York senator since 2009, is the latest in a spate of Democrats to end their campaigns in the past month after failing to make headway. Her departure leaves 20 Democrats vying to challenge Republican President Donald Trump in the November 2020 election. REUTERS

No automatic citizenship for US military children abroad

3 Children born to U.S. citizens stationed abroad as government employees or members of the U.S. military will no longer qualify for automatic American citizenship under a policy change unveiled on Wednesday by the Trump administration. Effective Oct. 29, parents serving overseas in the U.S. armed forces or other agencies of the federal government would need to go through a formal application process seeking U.S. citizenship on their children's behalf, the policy states. Currently, children born to U.S. citizens stationed by their government in a foreign country are legally considered to be "residing in the United States." But an 11-page "policy alert" issued by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) said the agency found the prevailing policy to be at odds with other parts of federal immigration law. Beyond that, the rationale for the policy change remained unclear. REUTERS

Pinterest to direct vaccine searches to health groups

4 Pinterest Inc. users searching for vaccine-related information will be shown results from leading public-health groups, in an effort to combat health misinformation on the site, the social media company said in a blog post on Wednesday. The move is an aggressive effort to moderate content by the newly public social media company. Social media platforms have been increasingly under fire for promoting misleading and incorrect content, including by opponents of vaccination. Pinterest said a search for "measles," "vaccine safety" and other related health terms now would return results from organizations including the World Health Organization (WHO), the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) and the WHO-established Vaccine Safety Net (VSN). The site will also ban ads and comments on those pages. REUTERS

NYPD searching for suspect in violent attack on rabbi, 63, in Brooklyn park

The attack, in Crown Heights, is being investigated as a hate crime.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

The NYPD is asking for the public's help in its search for a man accused of hitting a Brooklyn rabbi with a large rock in a suspected hate crime attack.

The NYPD Hate Crimes Task Force is investigating the assault, which took place at around 8 a.m. Tuesday in Crown Heights. Investigators released footage of the suspect on social media in the hope someone will come forward with information. Police are also upping patrols in the area.

Officials said 63-year-old Rabbi Abraham Gopin was working out in Lincoln Terrace Park, also known as Rochester Park, when a man threw a rock in his direction. Rabbi Gopin attempted to defend himself, punching back at the assailant. The suspect then picked up a larger rock, and threw it at the rabbi, hitting him in the face and drawing blood, authorities said. Rabbi Gopin was taken to Maimonides Hospital for treatment. His two front teeth were reportedly knocked out, and he had a cut on his face.

Additionally, ABC spoke with Gopin's son, who said that the rabbi's nose was fractured in two places and he required staples in his head as a result of the incident.

The rabbi said he feared for his life and felt targeted because other people were working out in the area, yet the suspect attacked only him. Furthermore, Rabbi Gopin was wearing a yarmulke at the time, and said he thought he heard the suspect yell a racial slur.

The victim's son-in-law, Benny Friedman, is a well-known Chassidic vocalist and tweeted out a thread all about the incident.

"This morning, as my father-in-law was walking in Rochester Park in Crown Heights, he was attacked with a deadly weapon. This is absolutely frightening, and obviously something that a civilization should never tolerate," Friedman said on Twitter.

Mayor de Blasio reposted Friedman's thread, sharing: "The NYPD Hate Crimes Task Force is investigating this despicable act of violence, and we will find the attacker. This city will stop at nothing to protect our communities from hate and violence. @BennysMusic, I wish your father-in-law a speedy recovery."

City Councilman Chaim Deutsch also voiced his concerns about the incident on social media. "A 64-year-old Jewish man was violently assaulted in Rochester Park in Crown Heights. THIS is the weapon that was used against him. Has it become too dangerous for openly religious Jewish men to walk the streets of NYC? @NYPD-HateCrimes is currently investigating this attack."

From the video footage, the attacker can be seen wearing a white shirt and black shorts.

Officials described him as a black male, approximately 6 feet tall, with long black dreadlocks.

If you or someone you know has any information about the suspect, call NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 800-577-TIPS (8477) or for Spanish, 888-57-PISTA (74782). If calling isn't an option, you can text tips to 274637 (CRIMES) then enter TIP577. You can also submit tips on Twitter and the Crime Stoppers website. All tips are confidential.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

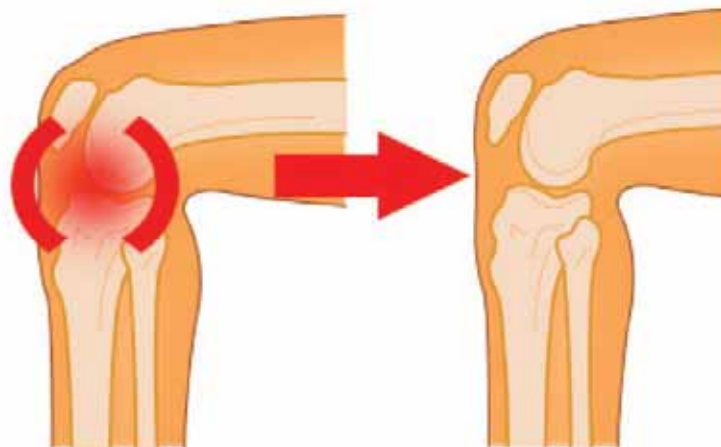

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

President Trump slams Puerto Rico as Dorian, now hurricane, heads for island

Governor says "better prepared" than when Maria hit in 2017.

President Donald Trump on Wednesday called Puerto Rico "one of the most corrupt places on earth" as the U.S. territory prepared for a hit by Hurricane Dorian, which brought back memories on the island of devastation from hurricanes two years ago.

Puerto Rico is still struggling to recover from back-to-back hurricanes in 2017, which killed about 3,000 people just months after it filed for bankruptcy.

Dorian was bearing down on Puerto Rico from the southeast and was expected to become a hurricane soon as it barrels towards Florida, which it could hit as a major hurricane.

After approving an emergency declaration for Puerto Rico late on Tuesday, Trump took a swipe at the U.S. territory in a tweet on Wednesday morning.

"Puerto Rico is one of the most corrupt places on earth. Their political system is broken and their politicians are either Incompetent or Corrupt. Congress approved Billions of Dollars last time, more than anyplace else has ever gotten, and it is sent to Crooked Pols. No good!" Trump wrote.

Trump has a history of disputes with Puerto Rico's leaders. He was heavily criticized for a tepid response to the 2017 hurricanes that battered Puerto Rico.

This week, Democrats in the U.S. Congress also slammed him for shifting $271 million earmarked for disaster aid and cyber security to pay for detention facilities and courts for migrants arriving at the U.S.-Mexico border.

House of Representatives Speaker Nancy Pelosi, a Democrat, on Tuesday described the shift as "stealing from appropriated funds."

The Miami-based National Hurricane Center (NHC) said Dorian was blowing maximum sustained winds of 75 mph about 25 miles southeast of the island of St. Croix on Wednesday morning.

"Dorian is forecast to be near hurricane strength when it approaches the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico," the NHC said.

Puerto Rican officials warned that the eastern part of the island should brace for particularly heavy rains.

"We are better prepared than when Hurricane Maria attacked our island," Puerto Rico Gov. Wanda Vazquez said on Tuesday.

Vazquez, who took office this month after political turmoil led to the resignation of her predecessor, said preparations for the storm were more than 90 percent complete.

Infrastructure ranging from electric power lines to telecommunications and banking networks were in better shape than they had been in 2017, she added.

BAD HISTORY

Two years ago, Puerto Rico was recovering from Hurricane Irma when Hurricane Maria struck in September 2017, destroying roads and bridges and leaving much of the Caribbean island without electricity for months.

The U.S. response to Maria became highly politicized as the Trump administration was criticized as being slow to recognize the extent of the devastation and in providing disaster relief to Puerto Rico, an island of more than 3 million people. Trump later disputed Puerto Rico's official death toll of 3,000.

Hogan Gidley, a White House deputy press secretary, accused Puerto Rican authorities on Wednesday of misusing taxpayer funds in the 2017 hurricanes.

"The money we sent down there, we now know, several on the ground have been indicted for misusing that money, giving it to politicians as bonuses, watching that food rot in the ports, the water went bad," he told reporters.

Puerto Rican public schools are closed on Wednesday and public workers have been instructed to stay home, Vazquez said.

Royal Caribbean's cruise liner "Allure of the Sea" canceled a scheduled visit to the island on Thursday, and Carnival Cruise Line also adjusted its itineraries, the governor said.

The NHC's latest forecasts predict that Dorian could reach Florida as a major hurricane early on Monday.

The Dominican Republic has also upped storm preparations. Juan Manuel Mendez, director of the emergency operations center, said authorities have identified 3,000 buildings that can be converted into shelters, with capacity for up to 800,000 people. REUTERS

US driver Jessi Combs killed in bid to break land-speed record

"All Girls Garage" host chronicled attempt to exceed 512 mph.

Race car driver Jessi Combs, host of the television series "All Girls Garage," was killed in a high-speed crash while trying to set a new land-speed record, her family said on Wednesday.

Combs, 39, was attempting to become the fastest woman on Earth when she was killed while racing on Tuesday on the Alvord Desert, a dry lake bed in southeastern Oregon, the family said in a statement.

The details of the crash were not released.

"Jessi's most notable dream was to become the fastest woman on Earth, a dream she had been chasing since 2012," the statement said. "Combs was one of the rare dreamers with the bravery to turn those possibilities into reality, and she left this earth driving faster than any other woman in history."

Combs, who began her career as a builder of hot-rod cars, was seen on television in a number of auto shows, including "Overhauled," "Truck U," "Myth-Busters" and "All Girls Garage."

Combs' close friend and teammate Terry Madden called her an "amazing spirit."

"Unfortunately we lost her yesterday in a horrific accident, I was the first one there and trust me we did everything humanly possible to save her!!," he said in an Instagram posting.

Combs had chronicled her attempt on social media to beat the 512-mile-per-hour women's land-speed record set in 1976 by American Kitty O'Neil, who died last November.

In a posting on Instagram this week, Combs wrote, "It may seem a little crazy to walk directly into the line of fire ... those who are willing, are those who achieve great things. People say I'm crazy. I say thank you."

New York's marijuana decriminalization law is now in effect

Marijuana is officially decriminalized in New York state.

The law went into effect on Wednesday, meaning that all criminal penalties will be eliminated for the use of marijuana and public possession. Furthermore, it will help carve a path for some individuals with prior convictions to be expunged.

Despite these new laws, "unlawful possession" of a drug is violation and fines will be reinforced, if someone has an unlawful possession of less than 1 ounce of pot, for $50. If the amount is 1 to 2 ounces, they will be fined $200, ABC reported.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo shared a statement on the law:

"For too long, communities of color have been disproportionately impacted by laws governing marijuana and have suffered the lifelong consequences of an unfair marijuana conviction.

Today is the start of a new chapter in the criminal justice system. By providing individuals a path to have their records expunged, including those who have been unjustly impacted based on their race or ethnicity, and reducing the penalty for unlawful possession of marijuana to a fine, we are giving many New Yorkers the opportunity to live better and more productive, successful and healthier lives."

The governor continued, "This law is long overdue, and it is a significant step forward in our efforts to end this repressive cycle and ultimately mend our discriminatory criminal justice process once and for all."

GOODBYE SUMMER

Thanks for the fireworks, the fireflies, the robins hopping on the dew. Thanks for the rainy mornings, the sweltering days, the cool nights when just a sweater will do. Your crazy unpredictability — we wouldn't want it any other way.

I didn't get to leave the city this summer, didn't cool off in a river or a lake. Didn't see a shooting star streak across the Milky Way. But knowing that others did, gladdens my heart.

And so, goodbye summer, fare thee well. We'll see you next year.

A minute with: Keira Knightley as a whistleblower in 'Official Secrets'

'Official Secrets' opens this weekend.

Actress Keira Knightley turns to the 2003 Iraq War for her latest film "Official Secrets," in which she portrays a British government employee who was fired for leaking a secret U.S. memo in the run-up to the conflict.

The 34-year old plays Katharine Gun, a former translator at Britain's global spy center who was charged with breaking the Official Secrets Act for leaking a U.S. memo seeking London's help in spying on the United Nations.

Knightley spoke to Reuters about the role. Below are edited excerpts of the interview.

Very few people know Gun's story.

Keira Knightley. PETER NICHOLLS/REUTERS

I remember the lead up to that conflict really well and I do not remember anything about this story...I thought wow, this is a really interesting thing to shine a light on, particularly when you look at the conflict in Iraq in terms of history, you think well that's a piece of the puzzle that feels very important and that I think people should know more about.

Why is it important for people to know more about it?

It's the questions that it brings: government accountability, legality of conflict and if perhaps conflicts are not legal, who is held accountable for that? How do we want our societies to work?

How much of it was a wakeup call to our generation to pay more attention to politics and foreign affairs?

Definitely within my friendship group it was such a moment of disillusionment because we all went to the streets... and the idea...that they weren't listening ... and that feeling of disillusionment and that feeling of shock at certain political figures maybe not telling the truth, I think has had a major impact.

Being a mother, how do these things play on your mind for the next generation?

It's going to be climate change isn't it? It seems pretty apparent and if you read anything about climate change it seems that they're going to be the massive things that younger generations are going to be hugely fighting against. The question really for our generation is are we doing enough?

How has the film helped you to understand what it takes for someone to risk everything by whistle blowing?

There will be many people that don't believe what Katharine did was right. There will be many people who do believe what Katharine did was right. What you can't question is her courage. The idea that somebody has a moral reaction to something and puts everything on the line...for something she believed was right in order to... save lives is an extraordinary thing. Would I have the courage to do that? I don't know. REUTERS

The cast of 'Dark Crystal' on lending their voices to this beloved story

We spoke with stars Keegan-Michael Key, Nathalie Emmanuel, and Jason Isaacs ahead of the show's premiere. PAT KING

This weekend, fans of the beloved Jim Henson film "The Dark Crystal" will rejoice as they will be able to spend all of Labor Day weekend binge-watching the brand-new series, "The Dark Crystal: The Age of Resistance" on Netflix starting this Friday. The 10-part series sends fans back to the land of Thra for an epic quest that acts as a prequel to the original all-puppet 1982 film.

In the new series, British actress Nathalie Emmanuel, better known for her role as Missandei on "Game of Thrones," lends her voice as one of the show's characters, Deet, one of three Gelflings — along with Rian and Brea, played by Taron Egerton and Anya Taylor-Joy, respectively — who set out to defeat the evil Skeksis and their quest to use the Dark Crystal's powers for evil. Emmanuel was completely blown away upon seeing her voice being transported into this world created by the unique imagination of the Henson Company.

ALL PHOTOS NETFLIX

"It's so phenomenal, the puppeteers are the real stars of this show," the actress told me. "The people that make the sets and the puppets, that artistry is just genius. Don't get me wrong, voicing these characters is really difficult because stuff is synched that you have no control over as a performer — unlike animation, where they can change it. So there are many challenges that come with that. But, I watched it and was blown away by the world that they created. Of course there are modern technologies that can be used, like CGI and special effects, but it was minimal. The real beauty is in the puppets and within the sets. It was filmed in a way that allows for that."

With all of this praise for the details that went in "Dark Crystal," and after being in another iconic fantasy property that relied heavily on CGI to bring its world into reality, I asked if Emmanuel could settle the score once and for all: Which is better, puppet or CGI?

"Puppetry, hands down!" she says with a laugh. "They're very, very different skills that require a lot of dedication and require amazing artistic ability. But to make a puppet emotive is just fascinating to me."

Another actor who is very familiar with being attached to wildly successful fantasy properties is Jason Isaacs, who plays The Emperor of the Skeksis. While the pressure of entering such a cherished world for fans may be a daunting task for many, Isaacs has found that the power of the fandom surrounding the properties he has worked on has given him much more appreciation for the art of storytelling.

"The last few years, just by chance, I've had something to do in a lot of fandom," Isaacs says. "With 'Star Trek,' 'Harry Potter,' 'Star Wars,' and now this. It's incredibly exciting and always reinvigorating for me, after decades as an actor, to be reminded how powerful stories are. ... The last few years, I've gotten to interact with fans and in a way, it's lit the pilot light inside me and reminded me how important stories are in our world."

The hilarious and always infectious energetic Keegan-Michael Key also stars in the show, as the Ritual Master, one of the Skeksis. For Key, his love of "The Dark Crystal" and all things Jim Henson can be traced back to early in his life.

"What drew me to it as a child is that the world became so immersive by virtue of the fact that all of the characters were puppets. You weren't linking in to a human! What's so amazing about the Hensons is they bring so much art into what they do that you fall in love with a small piece of vinyl, or plastic, or rubber. You get really invested in what this creature is going to achieve or not achieve, or win or lose, or how that's going to work. But what really sucks you in is you're really entering into another world. There's no humans in this world, and I think that's what drew me in."

Key is certainly one of the more agile and acrobatic comedic performers around, and with the puppeteers of the show doing the heavy lifting of propelling the action, I ask if Key found himself acting out the dialogue on his own while lending his voice to the character.

"I always do!" says Key in thunderous affirmation. "My favorite is when I do voice-over work and I walk into a room and the room is this size [points around the room with hands] and go, '[diabolically laughs] Strap a mic on me!' If they need you to land, I like to jump and land as opposed to trying to fabricate it. I continue to be as physical an actor and make choices as physical as I can even if I know I'm not going to be seen."

"The Dark Crystal: Age of Resistance" premieres on Netflix this Friday, Aug. 30.

Yoga lover, find your balance!

Its boom has been around for a while now, but new ways of practicing it are born every year.

JAVIERA GARCÍA V., MWN

Tree pose, child pose, warrior, downward-facing dog. Alternate breathing, retained breathing, simple breathing. More and more people are practicing this ancient discipline from India, which has both physical and emotional benefits. If you think that its practice is only for some, think again: Anyone can train in this discipline.

If for years you have been looking for a sport that makes you persevere, yoga can be an excellent option.

"It is a health system, because the body's entire biology is regulated, at the cellular and neuronal level. It cleans, purifies, feeds and oxygenates cells. It works at all levels," Yuyuniz Navas, yoga instructor (@yuyuniz72), explains to Metro.

Yuyuniz has been practicing every day for 15 years, and has taught women and children in particular for eight years.

"As long as a person is constant, they will clean their body, their emotions, their stomach, their thoughts and wake up. It helps to be more creative, lucid and provides more energy," she adds.

Fluid and rhythmic movements, connected with breathing, help you connect and energize your body. This means that with your practice you will begin to create more body awareness, which translates, for example, in being attentive to maintaining a good posture.

Physical therapist and yoga instructor, María Ignacia Hozven (@fisioactive.cl), highlights the contribution of these exercises on the muscles.

"Most sports generate muscle shortening, but with yoga you become very flexible, gain mobility of the spine and get a muscular balance that helps you reduce possible lumbar and joint pain," she comments.

Although it may seem like a low-intensity and calm sport, you can burn a high number of calories (between 200 and 800, approx.) during each session, depending on the yoga you choose. Because, no doubt, there are some more powerful than others.

TYPES OF YOGA

Asthanga

It is one of the most practiced, because it is a very complete sport, in which vigorous and demanding movements are performed. We're talking about an athletic and dynamic yoga that awakens the body, allows you to stretch your limbs and develop muscles. The sessions are composed of postures that are linked to the rhythm of breathing, which is known as Vinyasa, so it also helps to teach you to control inhalations and exhalations.

Aero

It is a relatively new branch that combines yoga and acrobatics. The postures are made with the help of a fabric swing that hangs from the ceiling. It is a different and entertaining practice, which delivers the benefits of inverted postures, relieving neck and head pressure. It allows deeper stretching and improves flexibility. Among the results obtained, strength, balance, working muscles and agility stand out, and calories are burned in each session.

Buty ballet

The combination of yoga, dance and cardio arrived a few years ago to Chile. The classes last between 60 and 90 minutes, and start with a meditation and then continue with an intense dance that makes you sweat and burn up to 600 calories to the rhythm of music.

For pregnant women

These exercises are a great way to get in touch with the child on the way, and prepare the body for childbirth. "It allows [you] to strengthen and improve the stability of the pelvic floor, which is super necessary for pushing," Maria Ignacia Hozven, physical therapist expert, explains.

Bikram

It is a style based on the therapeutic power of heat, because it is performed in a room that is heated to 42 degrees. In a 90-minute session, the same sequence of postures is always performed, which allows for them to work in-depth. It is ideal for those who need to sweat to feel that their body is working. It helps eliminate toxins, improving the appearance of the skin.

Power yoga

It is characterized by being a very strong practice in the physical aspect, which makes the body exercise to the fullest. The focus is on maintaining the postures for a long time, so that excellent results are obtained at a muscular level.

Crossing the line

film actor," says Travolta. "The film actor is a good father and a good person but not a good celebrity, while my character is a man-child who is on the spectrum. So all of that was intriguing to me and I just saw how I could play it."

It was the polarizing characteristics of Moose that drew Travolta in, and the 65-year-old noted that's how it has happened with some of his other over-the-top roles. "Sometimes you have those visions of how you'll do it. I had that with Shapiro in 'The People vs. O.J. Simpson,' and I felt that way with Edna in 'Hair-spray.' Once in a while, you get these things that are in your back pocket, and I felt that way about this."

One point of contention for Travolta, however, is whether or not he can make a character "likable."

"I don't want to do something in a movie that's not going to come off. Sometimes I'm offered roles where I say, 'You know what, I don't want to do this, it's too dark for me.' A lot of people hire me for these dark roles because I can solve them where they're still watchable, people can still like them. And I understand that. However, sometimes it's unsolvable: There's nothing I can find that I even like. So I choose not to do it. I have to have an affinity for playing it and

Die-hard fans come with the territory when you are in the public eye. Everyone from professional athletes to musicians and even famous incarcerated individuals seem to have a fan club. But one avenue that often sees rabid fandom is the movie biz — and that is abundantly highlighted in John Travolta's latest film, "The Fanatic."

Travolta stars as Moose, a somewhat well-meaning, socially-awkward movie buff who emulates action star Hunter Dunbar (Devon Sawa) to the point of obsession. Moose takes his obsession to new lengths when he finally gets to meet Dunbar in person. Expectedly, when the interaction doesn't go over too well, Moose's admiration turns extreme.

The film came from the mind of Limp Bizkit creator Fred Durst, and Travolta was not only surprised with Durst's writing, but it struck a chord for the seasoned actor.

"I knew [Fred] was creative with his videos, but I didn't know what he'd be like as a writer. But [the script] just really got to me. It deeply affected me because I identified with parts of Moose and I identified with parts of the

John Travolta as Moose in "The Fanatic."

I have to understand it," says Travolta.

When Moose first hits the screen, it's honestly difficult to initially feel the warm fuzzies for someone so out of tune with social cues. That is highlighted numerous times throughout the movie, with Moose cutting in on a heated argument between Dunbar and his ex-wife; Moose using a paparazzi app to find Dunbar's home; and then stalking his "hero" even after being threatened by Dunbar. But for Travolta, he wanted to discover why his character had such an extreme obsession. Being a veteran in the business himself, he had some ideas.

"There could be varying ideas on why the line between being just a fan and a fanatic can be crossed. There could be something off — like with Moose, he's on the spectrum and not thinking logically. Or there could be an obsessive affinity where you don't care and decide to take the risk and cross over the line of even simple manners and privacy. But let's say that's what it is. What's the measurement of that? How far would you take that in another situation? So I think there are these varying degrees of measuring over-the-line concepts. Some of it has to do with manners and public relations, and some of it has to do with estimating the state of mind that a person is in before you approach them," says Travolta.

Figuring out the varying degrees of measurement when it comes to privacy is just one theme the film explores. "The Fanatic" also showcases the harsh reality of emulating anyone famous, the complicated relationships anyone can have when they feel unbalanced, and the obsessive lengths fans reach when pushed.

Travolta certainly served up his dedication to the character of Moose on a silver platter, and went with his gut, for the most part, when doing so.

"I think a lot of the emotional licks and notes came from surprise feelings at the moment — it happened in a few scenes. I liked the idea of, how far will you go to convince the star you love of who you are? You have to tie them up and demonstrate as an actor, and with affection, never thinking of the consequence," says Travolta. "Tragedy and horror only affect Moose to a degree. He always sees the glass as half-full and moves on. That's my take on it."

"The Fanatic" hits theaters Aug. 30.

SPORTS

With their stars returning to health, New York's replacement heroes could see a severe cut in playing time.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

You'll rarely find a New York Yankees team that appeals to a neutral baseball fan.

Their usual embarrassment of riches of some of the game's biggest names — which results in seemingly annual contention — is the reason why they've been dubbed "The Evil Empire," by the baseball world.

But there's something about the 2019 team that's just so likable as the team epitomizes the mantra "next man up."

Yanks have tough decisions ahead

Gio Urshela could be hard-pressed for playing time soon. GETTY IMAGES

A litany of injuries has led to the emergence of several new Yankees stars, ranging from the over-the-hillers to the completely unknown.

Infielder DJ LeMahieu has increased his batting average by 57 points compared to last season with the Colorado Rockies. The 31-year-old who had never hit more than 15 home runs in a season now has 22 with the Yankees.

Reserve outfielder

Cameron Maybin possessed a .254 career batting average in 12 MLB seasons with seven different teams.

In the Bronx, he's batting .297 in 63 games.

Third baseman Gio Urshela, who had a .225 career batting average in 167 games before joining the Yankees, is batting .330 with 18 home runs.

Outfielder Mike Tauchman was written off by the Rockies, shipped to the Yankees for next to nothing after he batted .153 with no home runs and two RBI in 52 career games.

The 28-year-old is batting .285 with 12 home runs through 78 games with the Yankees.

Even Mike Ford, who has stepped up for the injured Luke Voit and Edwin Encarnacion, has eight home runs in his first 33 career MLB games.

It's all coming up roses for a Yankees team that sits atop the American League as we approach the final stretch of the regular season.

But manager Aaron Boone and the organization are going to be faced with some difficult decisions over the next few weeks.

The Yankees are going to see their regular starters make their way back into the fold as they return to health, which will make piecing together a 40-man roster a nightmare.

Both Voit and Encarnacion are close to returning. Voit could be back as soon as Friday while Encarnacion will follow soon after.

That makes Ford expendable and poses a problem regarding Urshela.

LeMahieu has taken over a bulk of the first-base duties during Voit and Encarnacion's stints on the IL. With Gleyber Torres at second and Didi Gregorius at shortstop, the only place to put LeMahieu would be at third base.

That suddenly makes Urshela a utility infielder for the stretch run.

Then comes the influx of talent that comes off the 60-day IL.

Before the regular season is up, the Yankees could see starting pitchers Luis Severino, Jordan Montgomery, relievers Dellin Betances, Ben Heller and outfielder Giancarlo Stanton reactivated.

That's five players that need to be re-added to the 40-man roster meaning there will have to be five players either optioned to the minors or designated for assignment.

While Yankees fans seem hesitant on reintroducing Stanton, a $325 million contract won't be used coming off the bench. That could mean the end of the road for either Maybin, who is currently dealing with a wrist injury, or Tauchman.

Big 3 amidst historic chase at '19 US Open

Nadal, Federer, Djokovic are in a race against the record books.

ADAM ZAGORIA
sports@metro.us

In this Golden Era of men's tennis, every Grand Slam tournament brings a new opportunity for the "Big Three" to make history.

If No. 2 seed Rafael Nadal can win his fourth US Open title next week, it would be the 19th Grand Slam crown of his career — bringing him within one of Roger Federer's all-time mark of 20.

Defending US Open champ and No. 1 seed Novak Djokovic is hot on the heels of both Federer and Nadal with 16 major titles.

"I need to keep improving every single day," Nadal, 33, said after his methodical 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 destruction Tuesday night of Australian John Millman, who took out Federer in the fourth round last year. "Winning with that result [will] allow me more to have a good practice. I hope to be ready for after tomorrow knowing is a tough challenge, Thanasi in the second round."

GETTY IMAGES

Nadal faces Australian Thanasi Kokkinakis in the second round Thursday and could get big-hitting American John Isner or 2014 US Open champ Marin Cilic in the fourth round.

Still, the bottom half of the draw opened up significantly for Nadal when four of the top 10 seeds all lost Tuesday: No. 4 Dominic Thiem, who lost to Nadal in the last two French Open finals; No. 8 Stefanos Tsitsipas, who beat Federer at the Australian Open; No. 9 Karen Khachanov; and No. 10 Roberto Bautista Agut.

"If you play bad, you can lose," Nadal said. "Tsitsipas had a very tough first round. Of course, Karen is a surprise. I think Thiem has been very sick for the last 10 days. I feel very sorry for him."

One player who could make a run in the bottom half of the draw is mercurial Australian Nick Kyrgios, the No. 28 seed who took out American Stevie Johnson in straight sets late Tuesday.

Kyrgios has all the talent to make a deep run but has never been past the third round at the Open. He could potentially face Nadal in the semifinals.

Djokovic and Federer are on the top half of the draw and could meet in the semifinals in a rematch of their epic five-set Wimbledon final won by Djokovic.

The "Big Three" have won the last 11 Grand Slam titles and 54 of 65 since Wimbledon 2003.

"I think if you ask Roger or Novak or myself what we think about that, we'll say it's something very difficult," said Nadal, who won his 12th French Open title earlier this year. "But here we are. For us, that's good news."

Andy Murray, a member of the so-called "Big Four," is playing this week in a Challenger event in Mallorca, Spain as part of his comeback from hip surgery.

Playing on the Challenger circuit for the first time, Murray beat 115th-ranked Norbert Gombos of Slovakia 6-3, 6-4 to advance to the round of 16.

Nadal, born in Mallorca, offered Murray the use of his boat while the Scot is there.

"I just texted him a couple days ago saying, 'If you need anything, just let me know,'" Nadal said. "You want to go out with the boat or anything, I can help you, just let me know."

"For us in the academy, is great news that he's there, of course. I saw the court yesterday where he was playing. full crowded. I think is great for him, great for us."
